Podcasts are like Radio on Demand

If you have never listened to a Podcast, you should give it a try. I used to listen to the radio while working around the house and once when I had to miss an episode, decided try out their podcast instead. Now I listen to them on my phone frequently while working in the kitchen, gardening or driving.

Your phone may already have a podcast app. If not, you can do a search for “podcast apps” and try one out. Some are free, some are free with ads and some have a monthly or yearly fee. They will be rated, so that can help to narrow down your choices.

No matter what your interests are, you will most likely find many podcasts to choose from. Most are free, but may have ads (can fast forward). The apps come with a search and you can subscribe to the podcast, then episodes will show up to stream or download. Many have details or transcripts in case you want to read or preview before listening.

Happy Listening while you work.
